REMEMBER BOYS AND GIRLS AT HINES

Tom Davis Feed Dealer of Tinley Dies Suddenly

Residents of Tinley Park were greatly shocked at the sudden death of their beloved and well known townsman, Thatcher Davis last Friday night. Mr. Davis, better known as "Tom" Davis had been attending the banquet of the Tinley Park Bowling League at the Saenger Hall in Tinley Park and when he returned home after ten o'clock he was seized with a sudden heart attack and died within a few minutes after he got into his home.

Mr. Davis had been complaining all evening about not feeling well.

Mr. Davis was born October 16, 1891 in Chicago. On July 28, 1924 he was united in marriage in St. Louis, Mo. with Miss Mary Bradley of that city. In 1925 he located in Tinley Park and has resided here ever since.

Surviving are the wife, one son Thatcher, Jr., his mother, two sisters Mrs. F. D. Forsythe of Hinsdale, Ill. Mrs. H. R. Davis of St. Louis, Mo. and a host of friends.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at the Hirsch Funeral Chapel in Tinley Park with a reader from the Christian Science church in Chicago Heights reading the service. Burial was made in Tinley Park cemetery on 167 St.

Mr. Davis was engaged in the feed business in Tinley Park. At one time he and Elmer Siemen operated a feed business in Mokena later on when this business was discontinued Mr. Davis opened a feed store in Harvey.

He had a very genial disposition and always had a smile for everyone and made a host of friends. He was deeply interested in sports and of later years was a very enthusiastic bowler.

He will be greatly missed not only in his home but in his community as well.

FRANKFORT WOMAN'S CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

Mrs. Lamar Weathersbee was elected president at the May meeting of the Frankfort Womens club held Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Chas. Pfaff. Mrs. O. Maples was co-hostess and was elected treasurer. Mrs. Walter Pfaff, vice president and Mrs. Fred Heisner, secretary will retain their offices another year. Mrs. James Bickley presided at the meeting. Following routine reports, Mrs. Geo. Andrew, reported on the Tri-annual meeting held last month in Joliet.

The theme of the program of which Mrs. Andrews as chairman was "Our Homes". My Grandfather's Clock and Songs My Mother Taught Me were sung by Miss Kathryn Lambrecht, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Maples. The study subject was Juvenile Delinquency. Specialties was the subject of the roll call, answered by members. A new member is Mrs. Watanabe, a newcomer to Frankfort. A quiz and movies shown by Mrs. W. V. Hedges provided entertainment. Refreshments were served. The next meeting will be held outdoors June 15, starting with a potluck luncheon at 12:30 p.m. In event of bad weather, Mrs. Fred Heisner will entertain the group in her home in the evening.

TINLEY NEO TRIANGLE HOLDS PICNIC DESPITE RAIN

Last Sunday in spite of fearful downpour of rain, the Tinley Neo Triangle held its picnic. Concluding that the damp woods were not suitable for a picnic, everyone pitched in and made a successful party in the gym. If you saw a hair raising apparition wandering around covered with blueberries it was probably only one of the refugees from the pie eating contest. Wesley Landau was the speedy boy who ate the quickest.

Feed bag races were held and Staush Leland was found to have the most prominent kangaroo tendencies. There were also foot races for both boys and girls. After these games were played the wonderful smelling and tasting lunches packed by the girls were auctioned off to the highest bidding boys.

This Friday night we shall hold our customary dance. The ping pong tournament will be closed and the winners announced. But this will not close the regular ping pong so regain your spirits you of the ping pong enthusiasts.

Now! Everybody be sure and come Friday night and contribute to the fund.

Marvin Schmadeke Marries LaGrange Girl

Monday night May 15 at 8 p.m. about 100 relatives and friends witnessed a beautiful wedding ceremony at the Presbyterian church in LaGrange when Sgt. Marvin Schmadeke, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Schmadeke of Orland Park, and Miss Dorothy Clifton of LaGrange were united in marriage by the Rev. Houser of the Presbyterian church.

Miss Clifton approached the altar on the arm of her father, Frank Clifton. She wore a light blue suit with white hat and wore an orchid. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Helen Rassmussen of Beverly Hills who wore a dark blue suit with matching hat and also wore an orchid. The groom was attended by his brother Orville.

Winfield Nash, brother in law of the groom acted as usher. As a special request of the bride, all her favorite songs were played on the organ as the wedding march.

The church was beautifully decorated in white flowers. Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlors where punch and cake were served.

The bridal couple left Thursday for El Paso, Texas where Marvin is stationed. They will make their home there for the time being.

Mokena Service Mother Makes A Worthy Suggestion

Editor of Mokena Bulletin, My dear Mr. Semmler:

May I express my views on the observation of Memorial Day this year? I have every reason to feel that the men who have fought for our country since it was first settled deserve our homage and respect. There were no draft evaders or slackers in our lineage that I know of. If any of our ancestors let the other fellow do his fighting for him my generation was spared the knowledge of it. But, this year, why don't we put our time and effort into doing something for the boys of World War I and II?

Let us think of these boys who are in Hines Hospital who need and appreciate our love and kindness. All respect to the Civil War veterans! My family line was full of them and they were near and dear to me but if they could speak today they would tell us to think of those we can truly help.

We know how much our local boys appreciate being remembered by the folks at home, even those who are still in training, and many have seen action. Don't you think we should remember the boys and girls at Hines (there are nurse casualties there), too?

They need playing cards, no matter how old. They are tearing cards in half trying to make the old decks reach. They also like comic books, games, jigsaw puzzles and mystery stories. If any one has anything to send I will be glad to see that it gets there. Just leave it at my house or at the post office.

How can we commemorate the brave men of other wars better than by remembering the boys of World War I and II now when they need us?

Sincerely,
(Mrs.) Florence Steele
(EDITORIAL NOTE—The Editor feels that Mrs. Steele has touched on a worth while idea and asks the public to bring some of the articles needed as mentioned by Mrs. Steele to the Mokena school Auditorium Memorial Day morning, next Tuesday, May 30th so they can be forwarded to Hines.)

SAENGER A. C. TO PRESENT BOXING & WRESTLING CARD

When the Saenger A. C. presents their first boxing and wrestling show local Sport fans should be in for one of the finest treats ever to be witnessed from the Amateur Boxing and Wrestling which will be sanctioned by the Central Athletic Amateur Association of America and Our Allied Countries.

GETTING TOUGH WITH SWEDEN

After too many months of Allied super-patience, the Swedes are in for a tough crackdown. At long last, the State department, the Foreign Economic administration and, perhaps more important, the British, have determined to pull together in telling the Swedes they will have to fish or cut bait in sending vital war materials to Germany—especially ballbearings.

The question of ballbearings involves the world-famous SKF ball-bearing company in Sweden, which operates a subsidiary company in Philadelphia. The president of the American company, William Batt, is vice-chairman of the War Production board.

Not many people realize it, but despite the loss of 600 U. S. aviators in bombing the Nazi ballbearing plant at Schweinfurt last fall, to say nothing of the loss of countless other lives, the Swedes have been nullifying these American sacrifices by shipping great quantities of ballbearings to Germany.

Hitherto secret, has been the fact that the Swedes have supplied Germany with 70 per cent of certain vital airplane ballbearings. And when you consider that one bomber alone requires up to 3,000 ballbearings, you realize that this is the most important single commodity Germany is now getting from the outside world. In fact, ballbearings are so essential that, without them, the Nazi airplane industry would be paralyzed almost overnight. No plane can be constructed without several hundred to several thousand ballbearings.

U. S. officials recently have unearthed information indicating that the Nazis deliberately planned, well before the war, to use Sweden as their source for ballbearings. A conversation reported to have taken place with Air Minister Goering has recently come to light, in which Goering explained that he was not anxious to build up the German ballbearing industry too much, since it might be advantageous to have the industry in a neutral country where it could not be bombed.

SEDITION TRIAL
MONKEYSHINES

The most patient man in the world is presiding over the "mass sedition" trial in the Federal District court here. He is painstaking, square-shooting Chief Justice Edward C. Eicher, who is recognized by the legal profession as absolutely fair and who has been leaning over backward to give the 30 indicted defendants their full day in court.

However, the defendants are demanding more than that. So brazen are some of them in their tactics to delay the trial, that they boastfully refer to themselves as "monkey wrenches from heaven," because, they say, there is always one among them capable of "pulling something" to cause another delay.

Here is an example of what the patient Justice Eicher has had to put up with. Whenever a defense motion has been denied, Charles B. Hudson of Omaha, Neb., publisher of a pro-Fascist news letter, "America in Danger," has turned and chanted to reporters:

"Railroad! Railroad! Toot-toot-toot!"

Eicher has overlooked much of this by-play in order to expedite the trial. However, he has almost worn out his gavel trying to keep Mrs. Lois de Lafayette Washburn—the nose-thumb-ing, Fascist-saluting Chicagoan who boasts descendancy from the Revolutionary hero — and some of her more demonstrative cronies in line. At one point, Mrs. Washburn leaped up and screamed: "Lafayette, we are here to defend ourselves!"

Ellis O. Jones, tall, lanky defendant from Los Angeles, also had to be gavelled down when he complained about the food in the district jail. "I've already lost ten pounds," protested Jones. "If this keeps up, you'll have to get me an undertaker."

NOTE—Eicher finally decided that these antics had continued long enough. Since he cited two defense lawyers for contempt, others are beginning to realize that Hitlerian horseplay of the type used by the Brown Shirts when they were tried after Hitler's unsuccessful Munich putsch will not get by forever in an American court. On the other hand, many of the defense attorneys, of excellent standing at the bar, are doing their best to preserve court decorum.

CAPITAL CHAFF

Friends have started a quiet boomlet for OPA Administrator Chester Bowles for vice-president. It began by pushing him for the Governorship of Connecticut, which he declined. Bowles, incidentally, has made one of the most unpopular jobs in Washington, the OPA, reasonably popular.

Mexican workers have now earned $12,000,000 in the United States under the emergency government program which brought them to U. S. farms and railroads.

Chinese and Jap Forces Fight for Pass

Savage fighting between Chinese and Jap forces in Honan, west of the strategic rail point of Chengchow, now centers on Hula Pass, which the enemy is reported as rapidly fortifying, following its capture, to prevent counter-attacks. Arrows in the map indicate centers of fighting outside Mihsien, where the Chinese have circled the enemy, and Yingshang where the Japs have been more successful. Diagonal lines in map at right indicate the general zone of action in relation to China.

W.N.U. FEATURES

THE STORY THUS FAR: Lieut. Col. Frank Kurtz, pilot of a Flying Fortress, tells of that fatal day when the Japs struck in the Philippines. Eight of his men were killed while fleeing for shelter, and Old 99, with many other Fortresses, was demolished on the ground. After escaping to Australia, what is left of the squadron flies to Java, where they go on many missions over the Philippines and Macassar Strait. Sgt. Boone, gunner, tells how Queens die, from eye witness experience. Java sea is now full of Jap carriers. The Japs bombard a helpless Dutch town, and a Jap bomb blows up the kitchen. Another bomb scores a direct hit on the fliers' supply of beer.

CHAPTER XVI

"The Dutch made us steel tripods for them in a machine shop, but we had a hell of a time getting anyone to dig the holes. We were flying missions and couldn't do it ourselves. So Silva and I took the truck and went into Madiun. On the street corners we saw a bunch of natives standing around picking their teeth or scratching their bottoms. We argued they must be Jap sympathizers, or else they would have been busy helping win the war. So we pulled out our .45's, and by a coincidence they all got into that truck, and dug up some of the nicest foxholes you ever saw. After that, when the alarm would go off we could run to those foxholes and swing a gun—we knocked down five Zeros with them in the short time we were there.

"We were fixing up our planes, too. Our tail guns had finally cured the Japs of making attacks from behind. Now they were coming in at all directions, hunting for our soft spots, feeling us out like we were some dame on a sofa, but mostly they were hitting us head-on, because they discovered that in the nose we had only a single little .30-caliber. I guess the designers, after putting in those tail guns, had figured they could rest on their laurels, but you can never do that long in a war.

"So we got busy there on Madiun Field. We mounted a big .50-caliber down in the navigator's compartment, rigging it so it would fire out of the ventilator. And for good measure we stuck in another .30-caliber.

"Since then they're carrying out this idea at the factory, but the only way any factory can learn what is needed is from the combat crews themselves.

"But about the time we got those new guns rigged in the nose, the Japs started staying away from us. We'd be flying along pretty as you please when a flock of Zeros would come into view, but staying well out of range—just looking us over. Then one of our gunners might fire a burst in their direction, just to let them know we were on the balls. Or sometimes the Zeros might come in for one or two wide, sweeping passes. But mostly they'd go off with their tails between their legs. Toward the last they only tried to get us on the ground. They knew we had no protection there to speak of—no fighters and no pom-poms. They'd come in insolent as could be."

(Meaning the gunners were in the ball turrets ready to fire.)

"That was the week I got into something way over my head in this liaison work," said Frank, "but first you ought to look at that big de luxe hotel which was the unofficial capital of Java. Its lobby, bar, and dining room were crowded with uniforms—British, Dutch, and American. It looked like a Hollywood costume parade.

"It was an enormous high-ceilinged spacious thing, open to the soft Javanese air—little tropical birds would fly in and out of the dining room and roost on the gleaming chandeliers.

"The Dutch are great eaters, and they have something they call resistance. You order it and then sit back and eat while twenty-three waiters line up and walk by your table, each carrying a different sauce or fish or bowl of relish or rice. I tried it once and managed to live by eating only every other course, but your true colonial Dutchman will stoke in all twenty-three into his big pot, drenching the layers down with mugs of beer.

"In the bar you might see the boys of Patrol Wing 10 in from reconnaissance, drinking Daiquiris (this hotel was Navy billeting headquarters), and often I would see my old Hollywood High School classmate John Robertson sitting there in his off hours, very handsome in his Naval pilot's uniform, and with him was the most beautiful girl in Surabaya.

"She had dark hair, and an almost ghostly pale face that was sad in repose. Then a smile would quickly light it up, and you'd wonder how you could ever have thought that. And the most beautiful legs in the city. When she'd walk through the bar clinging to John's arm and looking up at him, even the oldest and crabbier admiral would rustle a little in his chair and lean out to give them a formal inspection. The younger Naval pilots envied John to the point where they would have hated his guts if they hadn't liked him so much.

"John was very busy and I don't think he gave her much thought, but still it's nice to have the most beautiful girl in town crazy about you, to the point where it even bothers the admirals.

"She was, so they said, a very high Dutch socialite and had lots of money, which you might guess by how simple and expensive her evening dresses were. In the daytime she wore a beautifully tailored uniform of one of the woman's volunteer organizations. I think she drove a car for the Dutch General Staff.

"Meanwhile my job was growing by leaps and jumps. In that hotel dining room you might see General Wavell, the British Commander in Chief, or Admiral Hart, or General Brett, who commanded the United Nations Air Force, or Van Oeyen, the Dutch Commander in Chief. I was circulating among the tables, and my brief case was so crammed with hot information I wouldn't trust it in a checkroom.

"There was a feeling of tension. Refugees had been crowding in from Singapore and Sumatra. Now there was a feeling that maybe they'd be crowding out soon. Lots of the natives had already left, and those servants who remained you knew were staying only because they were very loyal. But to whom? Maybe to the Dutch. Or maybe to someone else

The same fist which held the flashlight also held a steel knife.

—staying around to watch us, relaying information we knew not how, or to whom. You couldn't be sure of anything.

"Except that I knew they were watching me, maybe only out of idle curiosity as I circulated from one table to the other, and kept that brief case leaning against my leg when I sat at my own table.

"That hotel certainly wasn't built to keep military secrets. The big high-ceilinged bedrooms had only swinging half-doors like barrooms—open to the air above and below. The barefooted native servants looked after them, only I'd catch them slipping in and out of mine at queer times of the day. But I thought I only imagined it. I also suspected they were listening in the corridor outside. One evening a couple of the pilots were down from Malang—going back the same night—sitting on my bed while we talked over new orders, and somehow a feeling grew on me we were being watched. I whispered to the others to go on talking, slipped off my shoes, tiptoed to the door. Just as I opened it I caught a glimpse of a white robe fitting around the corner. When I got out into the blacked-out corridor, I could see nothing. But then I was sure.

"That night I slept with my brief case under my pillow. In addition every bed was provided with a Dutch widow. At first the American pilots didn't know what to make of this and would kick them out on the floor. I should maybe explain that a Dutch widow is a long padded bolster, and if you sleep with it between your knees, it keeps your legs from pressing together and sweating in the tropical heat. After a while the pilots began to like them.

"But that night I went to sleep wondering about the white shape I'd seen flit around the corner. It seemed about the same size as the waiter who had been staring at me in the dining room for the past three days. Only staring isn't quite the word. Because this particular little chili-picker had glassy eyes like a turtle. I could never catch them directly on me, but I had the feeling it was I he was interested in.

"Two nights later Lieutenant Jacquet came up from Malang. By the time we had finished work it was so late I suggested he'd better spend the night with me. I put my brief case under my pillow as usual. On this particular night it contained something so important I don't even like to talk about it now. Maybe that was why I slept uneasily. Or maybe because the whole outlook for the war was so bad. I realized in the Philippines I had only been lucky, and I might never get out of Java. It was very hot, and in the distance a thunderstorm was muttering as it moved toward the city.

"Anyway, I'd been lightly asleep for about an hour when a glare awoke me. It was a flashlight, held very close—a haze of yellow light coming through the mosquito netting over my face. But in this haze I could see that the same fist which held the flashlight also held a steel knife, and that its point stuck down into the yellow cone of that flashlight. The other hand was just touching the edge of my pillow.

"I gave a yell and dived through that netting like a cat, but the yellow light instantly winked out, and I was standing there alone in the darkness, while Jacquet rolled out on the other side. He hadn't been as nervous as I, and was sleeping more deeply. But just then a blue lightning flash lit up the room, and by its quick glare I saw the door into the corridor closing (I was sure I had locked it). But when I got out into the corridor it seemed empty.

"Why hadn't he stabbed me? I think because he was surprised to find Jacquet there. One of us would surely have been able to make an outcry. And I thought to myself, 'Well, stranger, for a newcomer you're sure getting into a lot of things, because you never thought some guy you didn't know and had never bothered would ever try to kill you through mosquito netting in a place called Java.' The brief case was okay."

"And the queer thing was," said Margo, "that just at this time the report got back to America that Frank was dead. He'd been killed in a flying accident in Java. I was down in Florida by then, and the only man I could really talk to was Cliff Jensen, an Air Corps boy we had known at March and Albuquerque, and later at Morrison Field.

"He was stationed near by, and now was working twenty-one hours a day for the rest of the gang who were fighting in Java. I could really talk to Cliff—we understood each other. The rumor that Frank was dead somehow reached Australia, and of course the Air Corps is a small place. In a few days Colonel Truettell in California heard it from one of the ferry pilots, and a few days later Cliff heard of it. He didn't tell me, because he wasn't quite sure, but some people thought it had really happened.

"I could feel the difference. They were looking at me queerly now. They would say what a fine boy Frank 'had been.' Or that they were praying for his safe return. They never understood. They can't see that what you're anxious about is not the distant future, but this very night. Is he hungry? Must he go out on a mission? Maybe he's been badly hurt during the day, and you don't know it yet.

"Praying that everything will be all right during those weeks and months to come scares you—it's asking too much, you're afraid. You just pray he's all right tonight, and isn't wounded, and will get enough sleep, so he'll be strong and alert and have a good chance tomorrow. You don't dare ask more.

"Also those strong plump sunburned men who could leave their business for months to lie around on the Florida sands were very 'realistic' about the war—sure it was all a terrible mess and everything was going to pieces, offering me lots of sympathy. But what had any of them ever done to get us a decent Air Force in the past? Or what good were they or their 'realism' doing anyone now? I liked Cliff's better. He knew what the boys were up against and was up half the night trying to hurry reinforcements. Of the little we had (and he knew how little), so they could hold what they could. Cliff made sense. The rest was a nightmare."

"When we'd first hit Java," said Frank, "we'd been full of the offensive spirit—sure we were going to roll the Japs back off the Philippines onto Formosa with those thousand planes which, according to rumor, were coming within three months. The second month was almost up now, Java was unsteady under our feet, and we'd so far received about two dozen P-40's, maybe a few more Forts than that, and seven dive bombers. Hardly fifty planes in all.

"Now we knew the offensive was out for the time being. What we prayed for was fighters—to defend what was left of our Forts and those beautifully camouflaged Dutch airfields. With fighters to hold them off, we knew we could hold Java."

"All right, suppose the Japs had moved into Timor and cut the jugular vein from Australia, so that our P-40's could no longer hop on the island chain to us on their belly tanks? Why not a carrier? Couldn't the Navy spare just one—which could load up with P-40's in Australia and then, when it was still several hundred miles from Java and out of range of the Jap bombers, it could turn the P-40's loose, let them fly on in to us, and go back for another load?

PAUL ENCOURAGES THE CORINTHIANS

LESSON TEXT—II Corinthians 4:5, 16-18; 5:1, 5-8, 14-19.

GOLDEN TEXT—Ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, that ye through his poverty might become rich.—II Corinthians 8:9.

"Nothing is certain but uncertainty," so says the modern philosopher. But man cannot be satisfied with constant change and confusion. That is why, in our day of unheard-of disruption of ordinary life patterns, men and women especially need the message of the gospel, for in Christ we find the answer to our quest for certainty and stability.

Paul writing to encourage the church at Corinth assured them that life may be steady, useful and true because they are Christians. He presents:

The Christian—a Servant of Men for Christ's Sake (II Cor. 4:5), Having—

I. A Vision Which Lightens Affliction (II Cor. 4:16-18).

Any honest person knows that in the temporal world round about him everything speaks of death. All things tend to run down, to wear out, to decay, including the body of man. He sees his mental as well as his physical powers coming to a certain maturity only to go into decline.

At the same time he is conscious of the deep burden of affliction and sorrow which seems to press down on all the world like an almost unbearable and crushing weight. What can he do about it? Shall he try to dissipate the clouds by artificial cheerfulness? It will not work.

Our text gives us the answer. "For this cause we faint not," says Paul. The things which press us down are only temporal—they are of this world. God's world is eternal. The weakness of the physical body only makes the strength of the spiritual life more evident. The affliction which seems so heavy is only a "light affliction" when one remembers the "eternal weight of glory."

Is this just a bit of "escapism"? Is it only some wishful thinking? No, indeed. Have not men learned anew in the war that the only possessions you can keep are those which cannot be bombed to pieces or stolen?

Obviously, that is true in the highest degree of the one who knows Christ, and whose riches are those of eternity. How triumphantly he can meet decay and sorrow! He is of the other world, and nothing here can be more than a light affliction, which seems negligible in the light of the glory of eternal things. Ah, but it's great to be a Christian in such days as these!

II. An Assurance Which Removes Fear (II Cor. 5:1, 5-8).

Of all the fears which afflict mortal man the greatest and the ultimate one is the fear of death. He knows that it is so absolute and final that it terminates everything and separates him from all that he has known and held dear in this world.

That is just the point, death does end everything (except the awful fear of judgment for a wasted wicked life!) for those who live only for this world. Man, however, was never intended for just this present life. He is a being who has eternity written in his very personality.

What if this "earthly tabernacle"—my body—does give up, says Paul. I have a "building of God," something which man did not make with his hands, an eternal home in glory.

That gives a man confidence. While he is here in the body, he lives and walks by faith, but when absent from this body, he is "present with the Lord." How altogether delightful and marvelous is the future, even beyond the grave, for the believer. Hence, we "sorrow not as others which have no hope" (read I Thess. 4:13-18).

III. A Hope Which Makes Him a Living Testimony (II Cor. 5:14-19).

Worldly people sometimes wonder what tremendous and tireless motive power keeps Christians working for the Lord in the face of impossible difficulties. We have that motive named in verse 14—"the love of Christ constraineth us."

There is no compulsion about real Christian testimony and service. There is no feeling that one must do this or that in order to please God. No, the compelling force here is the love of a dying Saviour. It is the supremely powerful and all persuasive influence of love.

Christ died for all, and those who realize that, know that they cannot "henceforth live unto themselves" (v. 15). The social standing, or family connections of our fellow men, no longer control. Christ died for them and we must bring them the word of life.

Notice in verse 17 that it is the born-again-one who has this hope. Many church members whose lives are powerless and sinful are so because they have never been born again. "Except a man be born again" (John 3:3) he is not a Christian. That is the place to begin. Take Christ by faith.

ALFALFA—SOYBEANS
ALL LEGUMES WITH

INOCULATION

It costs about 12¢ an acre and takes only a few minutes to inoculate seed with NITRAGIN. Yet it frequently boosts yields of alfalfa, clover, soybeans, other legumes up to 50% and more. It increases feeding value of legume hay and pasture, helps build fertility. Tests prove it pays to inoculate every seedling of legumes regardless of nodules on roots of previous crops. NITRAGIN provides selected, tested strains of nitrogen-fixing bacteria. NITRAGIN is the oldest, most widely used inoculant—in the yellow can, at your seedsmen.

Twin plots of alfalfa, growing side-by-side produced these vastly different yields. Inoculation made the difference. Test by Experiment Station.

Garden Club News

"May is My Month Maybe?" a poem read by the president opened the May meeting of the Tinley Park Garden club at the home of Mrs. James English.

Plans were discussed for a fall flower show the none are definite. So watch for later news.

Each of the members are to make clothpin dolls for the Fruit and Flower guild to be sent to children in charity hospitals. So to this worthy cause lets all try to make as many as possible.

A poem entitled "The Smallest Cog in the Wheel for the poem or prose was prepared by Mrs. O'Neill and in her absence read by Mrs. English.

Cake, coffee and tea was served by the hostess. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Ed Moss Agnes English, Press ch.

I wish to thank the public and the workers who so willingly gave their service to make Poppy Day a success.

Georgine Mager, Am. Legion Aux. Poppy chairman

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Niemeyer have received the Purple Heart from their son Sgt. A. Niemeyer, who received it for being wounded in action at the Anzio beachhead in Italy on March 1. He is still in the hospital recovering. His address is: Sgt. Alvin Niemeyer, 36343485, 2628 Hospital section, APO 698, care postmaster New York.

Alvin wrote the following poem:

MOTHER
In the year nineteen hundred and forty four
On the fourteenth day of May
You are near to my heart dear Mother,

For the date marks Mother's Day.
Even though thousands of miles are between us,
And two years have already gone by
The absence makes my heart grow fonder

Of my Mother, whose esteem I hold high.

In this war tor world as we see it now,
Many a Mother is sad today
Waiting for the time of her son's return

So she can continue to be happy, and gay.

And so dear Mother, with a personality so fine
And a way that's exceedingly grand
God bless you and keep you in the best of health

Until again I return to my native land.

SERVICEMEN'S NEWS
Dear Friends:

First of all I want to thank you for the Christmas package. I'm sorry I haven't thanked you before this but I was so busy it slipped my mind and thank you for the package I just received with the chocolate, candy, cheese and crackers. I got here just in the right time. I just got in from Biviac. I have been eating D, C and K rations for 14 days. Oh boy that cheese and crackers hit that empty spot in my? ha ha. Thanks also for sending me the Tinley news.

I have finished my 17th week of Basic training and received my diploma from the motor school. I was picked to stay here at the motor pool, only six stayed here out of our class the rest shipped out. I hope to get a furlough before long so I can get home to my loved ones. Say hello to all for me.

Thanks again.

Sincerely yours,
Kanev Asher

Hi Mates:
I received your very thoughtful letter, Easter card and package and felt like showing my appreciation of everything by writing you.

Thanks for the Tinley Park Times. The reason for the Hi Mates is that anybody who is as considerate of our boys in Service as the Citizens Service Comm. is certainly entitled to be called "Mate".

I find the Navy the best branch of the Service but not like home, of course I've got three darn good shipmates there who I just can't forget.

Thus far I have had 5 shots in the left arm (my left arm looks like swiss cheese). I have had tests both mental and physical until I'm blue in the face. So far I have passed everything and am able to keep on my own two feet.

Should be home about the 27th of are thousands of men here and more the month or maybe before. There waiting to get in, so you see they are going to try to get rid of us as soon as they possibly can.

Good luck and I'll see you soon.

Hank Boldt

Dear Friends:
Just a few lines to let you know I am well and feeling fine and hope everything back home is the same.

Today we completed our processsing and tomorrow we start our basic training which will last about 35 days after that we will be sent to the various Air Force schools.

Army life thus far has been quite an interesting experience changing from a civilian to a soldier and doing things the Army way.

I want again to thank the Service mens committee for the gift I received, it is very useful and I sure appreciate it.

Its almost time for lights out. I'll write again soon, so till then,

I am as ever,
Pvt. John Bellante

«SO PROUDLY WE HAIL»

We hail our flag . . . the Stars and Stripes . . . as it flies high with the other United Nations' flags in world battles. We will see to it that our flag, and those of our allies, will go on waving high over battles to come until final victory. We will see to it that the post-war world maintains the freedom, democracy, progress and unity which our flag, and these flags, symbolize!

HOMER

Mrs. Fred Kopelman

Mrs. Minert and the pupils of the Ross school entertained the mothers in the district in honor of the four boys, Arden Reiter, Earl Hiller, Charles Jungles, and Edwin Reiter who are graduates this year. An interesting program was presented by the children as was an exhibit of their work, after which refreshments were served. The children gathered flowers from the nearby woods and presented each mother with a corsage.

Ralph Reiter attended the Civic Service Farm and 4H Leaders dinner at the Hotel Louis Joliet, Thursday night. Upon request Mr. Reiter has decided to lead a boys 4H club in Homer and a meeting will be held in the Reiter home and a club organized. Mr. Leonard W. Braham of Joliet will be present to aid in the organization. Anyone between the age of 10 and 21 may join.

The Homer Happy Home Helpers met Saturday afternoon in the home of Shirley and Betty Dempsey. Two new members were enrolled in the club, Anna Mae Bump and Gloria Welter. The program opened with a salute to the flag and group singing led by Barbara Rasmussen and Yvonne Hansen. Betty Dempsey gave a demonstration on threading a sewing machine. Charlotte Goodman and Arlene Reiter favored with a vocal duet. While the younger members practiced stitching on the sewing machine, the older girls started their summer work in sewing, and the diary food girls prepared creamed potatoes which were later served for lunch. A lively ball game ensued later. The next meeting will be Saturday afternoon, in the home of Eleanor Kopelman.

Little Margo Shanette of Joliet has been spending a portion of the week in the home of Mrs. Fred Bridges. Margo's mother is very ill in Silver Cross hospital.

Billy Kasper and Earl Kopelman were visitors in Chicago.

On Friday night June 2, several pupils of Professor Carl Songer will present a concert at the Methodist Church in New Lenox at 8 o'clock. Miss Rachel Ann Bridges will favor with several numbers. Others listed on the program are Margie Ann Johnson, Ruth Ann Miller, Margie Ann Cutler and Arthur Carlson.

The committee for the Memorial Day services met Tuesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burch. Plans were made to hold the service in the Homer church Sunday evening, May 28. The committee in charge is Mr. and Mrs. J. T. White, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burch and Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Moore.

Diplomas were presented to nine pupils from Homer Township at the Lockport Twp. High school, Friday night. Presentation of the diplomas was made by acting County Superintendent of schools, August E. Maue. From district 130, Henry John Hiller, Charles Jungles, Arden George Reiter and Edward Michael Reiter, with Mrs. Wm. Minert as teacher; district 131, John Wrobel, with Mrs. Kathryn Kerrin as teacher; district 134, Evelyn Elsie Burda, and Margaret Koolman with Mrs. Martha Piper as teacher; district 135, Jean Elizabeth Bonmet and Betty Mae Hank, with Miss Honora Blum as teacher.

Sgt. and Mrs. Detmar Miller of Camp Howze, Texas have been spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carroll, also with his mother, Mrs. Lydia Miller in Joliet. Sgt. Miller returned to camp Wednesday, and Mrs. Miller will join him later at Gainesville, Texas.

Decoration day will be observed at the Brooks cemetery Tuesday afternoon, May 30 at 2 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jungles of Lemont, Mr. and Mrs. Harlow Jungles, Mr. and Mrs. Owen Ott are the committee.

The Ladies Missionary society will meet Thursday in the church parlors with Mrs. Guy Bump and Mrs. Orville Rasmussen as hostesses.

The Good Luck camp of Royal Neighbors met Thursday with Mrs. Evelyn Welter and Mrs. Carrie Ott assisting hostess. During the business session, Mrs. Marie Welter and Mrs. Dorothy Lister were appointed to purchase plants and place them on the graves of the deceased members. Bunco was played and prizes awarded to Jennie Ott, Evelyn Welter, Marie Welter, Amelia Putz, Anna Welter, Eloise Anderson, Mary Konow, Eleanor Wies, Kathryn Wies. The June meeting will be held with Miss Ida Harrington in Lockport, with Mrs. Mary White assisting.

Pfc. and Mrs. Valdeen Huckfeldt of Camp Howze are guests this week of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carroll. Mrs. Huckfeldt was the former, Verna Carroll.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Ingersoll, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bentley were dinner guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Corp of Troy.

The Wayside Workers Circle of Kings Daughters will meet Thursday afternoon, June 1 at Palos Park with Mrs. Ira Anderson as hostess.

The monthly community club party will be held in the Homer Town Hall Friday night. Cards and bunco will be played and prizes awarded. Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Ingersoll are chairman of the committee.

Interesting Study of U. S. History

By Congressman Chauncey Reed

It now develops that Stella Frankfurter, sister of the Supreme Court Justice, was one of the editors of the controversial Office of War Information "Handbook of the United States", now on sale in Britain, but prohibited from distribution in this country. A writer in a Washington newspaper points out some of the shortcomings of this volume published by the United States Government. For example: "History... the principal facts of the Revolutionary War are given without mention of a gentleman by the name of Geo. Washington, 'The Presidency of Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson is wholly ignored. So are vital events of each.

"The cause of the war of 1812 is given as 'trouble with the Indians supposedly instigated by the British'. On the other hand, President Madison, in his message to Congress, June 1, 1812 asking for a declaration of war, gave as the principal cause 'violation of the American flag on the sea, and refusal of Great Britain to repeal the Orders in Council.' 'A History of the Navy' since 1775 is given, but no mention of the Revolutionary War engagements. 'Various and sundry obscure dates are inserted at random.

"A map of the United States adorns the inside back cover. In North Carolina it lists as a city, a place called Murphy. The population of Murphy is 1,873. There are 41 larger populated places in N. C.

"In West Virginia, three cities are shown, including—in large type, Oceana, population, 101. Oceana is so small it is not even listed on most American maps, and there are 597 larger places in West Virginia.

"In Arkansas, the map shows in large clear letters the town of Marshall. Latest check on its population shows 822 souls dwelling there. Some six cities in Arkansas are given, but 77 towns far larger are not mentioned. Britishers, however, will doubtless gather there are several large cities in the United States, including New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Murphy, Marshall and Oceana.

"Oh yes, and the list of state papers selected by the Office of War Information to be reprinted is interesting. The Constitution of the United States is omitted by Elmer Davis' historians."

Best Sellers

Six books currently on the best sellers lists and a number of others that have been, among the best sellers of the past year are included in the catalogue of 200 volumes published recently by the National Conference of Christians and Jews for the observance of Religious Book Week which was observed from May 7 to 14.

Religious Book Week, sponsored annually by the Conference, this year coincides with the anniversary of the public burning of books by the Nazis in Berlin on May 10, 1933. According to the catalogue, "it seems eminently fitting that in the United States we dedicate this anniversary to books with a spiritual background."

The best sellers listed include: "The Song of Bernadette" by Franz Werfel, "The Apostle," by Sholem Asch, "Burma Surgeon" by Gordon S. Seagrave, "The Robe" by Lloyd Douglas, "On Being a Real Person" by Harry Emerson Fosdick and "New World A-Coming" by Roi Ottley.

War Bond Quota

Chicago and Cook County's share of the state quota for the Fifth War Loan will be $894,014,000 it was announced May 17th by Philip R. Clarke chairman of the Chicago and Cook County War Finance Committee for the 5th War Loan Drive.

The state quota has been set at $1,107,000,000. The drive will start June 12 and end July 8.

The quota for Series E bonds for Chicago and the county will be $125,493,000. The total for all individual bonds, including Series E, will be $277,439,000. Corporations in the city and county will be asked to purchase $616,575,000.

Every payroll worker will be asked to make a cash investment of not less than $100 from his pay or savings for the purchase of war bonds, it was stated by Geo. Huth, chairman of the Cook County payroll committee.

Quotas will be established for each of the 1,600 plants based on this individual sales per person so that a plant, for example, with 1,000 employees would be given a quota of $100,000.

'Does and Don'ts' for Home Equipment Care

THE old adage, "Take care of what you have and it will take care of you" is doubly true these wartime days when household appliances are difficult to replace, Marjorie Griffin, Home Editor of nationally circulated Capper's Farmer advises housewives.

Here are some of her "does and don'ts" about such items as the kitchen sink, the refrigerator, and the range:

"Don't let coffee grounds or particles of food, especially greasy ones, go down the sink drain. If it gets stopped up, force it with a suction plunger. Regular use of a commercial detergent or chemical will soften the accumulation in pipes so it can be rinsed away. Soap and water or a mild abrasive, used daily, will keep the surface spick-and-span.

"Don't crowd the refrigerator or foods will not keep well. Be sure refrigerator isn't getting hot under the collar standing too near the range. Defrost regularly; frost on freezing unit shouldn't get over one-fourth inch thick. Never pry trays manently discolor the finish. When cold, wash with soapy water. Washing while hot may craze enamel.

or frost loose with a knife. Wash shelves and interior of mechanical or ice refrigerator once a week.

"The range is home base in your kitchen. Clean oven with soap and water. Rub with unsalted fat to prevent rust. Don't store food in the oven. Wipe up food as it is spilled, as acids in some may permanently discolor the finish. When cold, wash with soapy water. Washing while hot may craze enamel.

War Prisoners Aid

Two organizations, the International Red Cross, and War Prisoners Aid of the Y.M.C.A., now serve prisoners throughout the world, under the terms of the Geneva Convention of 1929, which specifies the treatment and rights of war prisoners and the duties of their captors. Such service to prisoners is reciprocal, each belligerent permitting this so that its own nationals may receive it in the camps of the enemy.

The Red Cross distributes supplementary food, clothing and medical supplies, while War Prisoners Aid of the Y.M.C.A. stimulates the programs, and provides the necessary materials, for all of those leisure-time activities whose object is to maintain spiritual, mental and physical health throughout the dreary months or years of captivity.

Neutral Y.M.C.A. representatives visit prison camps, talking with both commandants and the elected leaders of the prisoners themselves, to discover the needs of the men. Necessary materials are then shipped from the organization's headquarters at Geneva, Switzerland, or from one of its many other centers. Hundreds of tons of educational, recreational and religious supplies are thus shipped regularly to camps throughout the world. National offices of War Prisoners Aid of the Y.M.C.A., a participating service of the National War Fund are at 347 Madison Avenue, New York City.

WARTIME IDEAS FOR DAIRYMEN

for faster, better cooling

In peace or wartime, don't gamble on milk protection. Chances of milk rejection must be cut to a minimum if all the milk produced is to be marketed. One of the easiest ways to keep bacteria count down—to do a quicker, more thorough job of cooling—is to use an automatic milk stirrer like this laboratory and field tested homemade model. Spend a few hours constructing this one from odds and ends lying around your place and you will have a profitable time, work, and milk-saver.

BILL OF MATERIALS

- A — 1/4-HP motor
- A1 — 1" x 8" lumber motor base hung from ceiling or wall bracket.
- B — Hand tool grinder with 10 to 1 gear ratio.
- C — 8" V pulley attached where emery wheel is removed.
- C2 — 2" V pulley on motor.
- D — V belt, 24".
- E — Pitman arm 6" long attached where crank is removed.
- F — Pitman bar 1" x 1" x 3" lumber.
- G — Rocker drive arm 1" x 2" x 18" lumber.
- H — Rocker bar 2" x 2" length of water tank.
- I — 3 rocker arms 1" x 1" x 24".
- J — 2, 1" x 4" x 30" oak lumber used to attach rocker bar to ceiling.
- K — 2, 1/2" x 3" lag screws and 2, 1/2" washers.
- L — 6 pieces sash cord or small chain each 6' long.
- M — 6 harness snaps.
- N — 6 milk stirrers with perforated bases. Use one milk stirrer to circulate water in cooling tank.

Salvaged parts from an old tool grinder, a quarter-horse motor, and some 1/2" iron pipe went into this practical, homemade stirrer (pictured above) used on the Sunset Ridge Farm, Bourbonnais. Stirrers patterned after this one are being used with much success on many Northern Illinois farms.

LOOKING AHEAD

PRIDE OF RACE is something America has never developed to a high degree because it is peopled with so many different races. Just the same, Americans have every right to pride in fine heritage. Edmond E. Lincoln recently put it in a few words. He said "America has been developed by the most courageous, industrious and honorable peoples of the earth. We have built up from the best of the best foreign countries."

Some people have come to the United States who did us no good. Mr. Lincoln does not dispute this. He makes it plain, however, that all of America's early settlers and most of the immigrants who came later, so different outwardly, were a lot alike inside; and, in important ways. They were brave, honest, hard-working, God-fearing folk. All they lacked was getting used to one another, and that has largely been done.

National PRODUCTS of hard Stability work and honesty, so valuable to individuals, also give strength to nations. Half of the people in America own the homes in which they live; that's national stability. More than one person out of five in this country has a savings account in the bank. One American in 14 owns shares in some corporation, and 68 million (more than half of us) have insurance. None of these things could be said truthfully of any other country on earth.

In America we are short on heraldry but we are long on bath-tubs. Free to live our lives in any honorable manner, and quick to learn new things from one another, the families of America constantly grow more alike in habits and in aims. Thus living standards rise and American culture advances far beyond that of old-world races, cramped by pointless restraints and crippled by mysterious grudges over long-forgotten disputes.

Freedom MR. LINCOLN says, Can Live "For several specific reasons, it does not seem probable that the United States will finally succumb to subversive influences which have been exerting themselves from abroad." Seeking religious liberty, political freedom, and economic rights, the pioneers of America fled Europe because even then they could see, at least dimly, calamities that later came upon it. They quit all European classes and became individuals.

Eleven years in other lands made me glad to be an American. I could never advocate ignoring the rest of the world because we can help people everywhere, and it is no less than our duty. Just the same no isolationist could be farther than I from transplanting foreign feuds in America. The surest way to make ourselves useless at home and abroad is to pollute our freedom with philosophies excluded by the founders of this free country.

A dominantly strong centralized government of the European type is a first-rate example. Nothing could be more deadly to the American way of life, no plague more completely blighting to Democracy, than a government in Washington overruling the private lives of citizens. It is completely foreign to American ideals. Permitted to operate unrestrained it will destroy our prosperity, our freedom and finally ambition itself.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Did you hear that Tom is going to be inducted into the Army next week, Judge?"

"Yes, Frank told me this morning down at the barber shop. Our town's got a lot of men in the service now, Jim. In fact, all towns have. I was just reading in the paper where there are more than 10,000,000 men away from their homes in the armed forces. And, from all reports, they're doing a grand job bringing victory closer every day."

"We folks at home have a mighty big obligation to those 10,000,000 fighting men. We've got to produce the food to keep them well fed. We've got to keep them supplied with the ammunition and equipment they need to finish their job. We've got to help the Government pay for all these supplies our men need by buying more and more War Bonds. We'll have another big chance to do that by helping to put the 5th War Loan drive over the top, Jim."

"And, in addition, we must be sure that, while they're away and can't express their opinions, we don't go voting on and deciding any things that will displease them when they come back."

ORLAND GIRLS 4H

The regular meeting of the Orland Girls 4H was held at the home of Gladys Schuldt. The meeting was opened by the President. The 4H pledge was repeated. The Secretary read the roll call with each member answering with a way to prevent an accident. She then gave a report of the previous meeting. A motion was made that our club give money to the China relief. There was no other new business.

For the entertainment, Gladys Schuldt played a piano solo. Dorothy Yunker played a piano solo. Alice Ihlenfeld gave a demonstration on pressing garments and Laverne Keuch gave a pattern demonstration. The meeting was adjourned, games were played and Gladys' brother showed movie pictures. A fine lunch was served by Mrs. Schuldt which ended the evening.

There was a change in officers: Laverne Keuch, Pres. Gladys Schuldt, vice pres., Shirley Nelson Sec. and Treas. Dorothy Yunker, club reporter.

Mrs. Ray Doctor, Poppy chairman announces the total amount collected from the sale of poppies is $186.70. The chairman wishes to thank all the volunteer workers for their splendid cooperation in making our Poppy Day a grand success.

Members of the Community Committee responsible for the successful activities during the year, were entertained at luncheon Tuesday noon May 23 at the Home Economic Unit by the Orland Park School.

Under the supervision of Miss Virginia Tabor, the class prepared and served a luncheon in a very fine manner. The guests wish to thank the school, Miss Tabor and the students for their expression of appreciation.

BLOOD DONORS

Blood Donors: During the week of May 13 the Blood Bank in Chicago was 734 pints short of the 6,000 pint quota. Our boys overseas and at home aren't lying down on the job and we can't let them down. Your pint of blood turned into plasma can help save the life of a man in our armed forces fighting for us. Make an appointment now at 5 N. Wabash avenue and KEEP it! It is so important. More and more blood plasma is needed. The war is far from ended and now as well as after the invasion blood plasma is taking a paramount place in saving lives.

Canning Demonstration

Canning demonstrations are being planned by Mrs. Alice C. Herron, Emergency Food Assistant, of the Home Economics Extension Service, for interested homemakers during May and June in Joliet and vicinity.

Mrs. Herron is available to give these demonstrations for any women's groups, such as PTA, Homemaking Clubs or Church Circles. Actual canning of fruits and vegetables will be done.

Letters From Tinley Service Men

April 13, 1944

Dear Folks:
Just a few lines to let you know that I received my first issue of the paper this week and was really glad to get it. I've also received the cigarettes that you sent me and enjoyed them a great deal. I think that your committee is really a swell thing and I imagine all the boys enjoy hearing from you. I guess there are lots of the boys from town not so very far away from me but its pretty hard to get in contact with them. Emory is very close to me but haven't had the chance to see him. Hope that one of these days we can get together. I wish to say hello to all the boys and hope we can have a real get together when we settle this affair.

As ever,
Paul Nielsen

Dear Friends:
I received the swell Easter package today from you. It sure was good, the fellows and myself enjoyed it very much. Although I have been in the service for a few months this is my first letter to you swell people. I have been receiving the Tinley Park Times, a little late but the news is new to me. I am down in Virginia right by Chesapeake Bay. It sure is a beautiful place down here. I am enjoying the warm sunshine and boat rides.

I am in the amphibious forces. At the present time I am going to school learning to be gunners mate. The training is rugged but I am getting along swell. I want to thank you people for what you are doing for us boys in service it makes me feel good to know that the people back home are thinking of me. I thank each and every one of you from the bottom of my heart. I must close now for the bugle just sounded off for taps.

As ever,
Louis A. Gini

April 16, 1944

Dear Friends:
Your Easter package arrived several days ago in very good condition. I enjoyed its contents very much and now I wish to extend my heartfelt thanks. As so many of the other fellows have already mentioned, I believe ours is the only community which has such a splendid servicemen's committee. Any praises I could add to what has already been said about your service would just be superfluous. So I will just ask you to please continue your wonderful work for all the boys. I know that it is fully appreciated by one and all. I have finished my instrument training and I am now in a Pilot's Pool at the main base awaiting assignment to an advanced squadron. I am to train to fly dive bombers. We will receive approximately ninety, five hours of flying in advanced which will include acrobatics, gunnery, navigation, hops combat maneuvers and night flying.

That is all I have to say for now. Thank you and so long for now.

Sincerely,
Don Boerner

WE ARE now moving into a strange field, the fourth dimension. For us it is the sixth dimension.

It is Mr. Einstein's field of "relativity," as applied to sport. It isn't complex at all. It is quite simple. It simply means that all things are relative, for the time being. Meaning comparison.

For example, Mike Jacobs had no Louis, Conn, Gans, Leonard, Nelson, Greb, etc., this last winter and spring, yet Mike had his best season.

Last fall, football had lost many of its leading stars to army and navy, yet had one of its big years, college and pro.

It was a relative matter of "what was left against what was left." The same thing will happen to baseball and racing this spring and summer.

Suppose baseball has lost DiMaggio, Feller, Dickey, Cochran, Gordon, Keller, Ted Williams, Mize, etc. etc.? The game is still left—and the game is greater than any star.

I remember the time they used to ask me what was going to happen to baseball when Wagner, Mathewson, Lajoie, Cy Young and Rube Waddell were through. What was going to happen when Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth and Tris Speaker turned in their uniforms? Who would take their places?

There is always someone ready to step into the vacant spot. It may be a relative spot, but sport works in the same way the universe works, where all things are relative.

The Main Point

The main point is that all games worth while are far greater than any individual star.

For example, baseball, as a game, is far greater than Babe Ruth, Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker, Joe Jackson, Christy Mathewson, Joe DiMaggio, Bill Dickey, Hans Wagner, Frank Frisch, Bob Feller or anyone else you can name.

Football would have been a great game minus Jim Thorpe, Bronko Nagurski, Sammy Baugh, Sid Luckman, Pudge Heffelfinger, the Chicago Bears, Notre Dame, and all the high spots you can remember.

No Cobbs or Ruths made baseball. No Notre Dames nor Chicago Bears made football. No Bobby Jones or Walter Hagen or Harry Vardon made golf.

I happen to be a great believer in the game above any individual. When any individual is more important than the game, then it isn't the right game.

Action, Thrills Still Left

This, again, is where relativity comes in. In other words, class is only relative with class. There can still be action, entertainment and a real contest where top class is missing.

I agree with my old friend, now dead, one of the greatest competitors and one of the greatest sportsmen I have ever known. The name is Devereaux Milburn, the polo-playing star.

"It is the contest and the hard, close competition that makes every game worthwhile," Dev said.

"I get more of a thrill in being beaten in a tough, hard, close scrap than I ever get in winning a walk-over or a runaway. To me it is the game, the contest, that counts—and not so much the final score. I know this sounds like hokum. I like the sort of scrap where you have to give everything you have in order to win. I still say it is more fun to lose in that type of contest than it is to win against out-classed opposition."

Milburn was exactly 100 per cent right, as he usually was. Winning, of course, is an important factor. But it isn't everything in sport.

We have planted too much importance on individual stars, too much importance on winning, over the greater values that come directly from the game itself.

Who, after all, could ever compare Louis and Dempsey, Corbett and Tunney, Grange and Thorpe, Ruth and Cobb, Vardon and Jones? It can't be done. For there is a relative angle that most people overlook. Time, equipment, training and many other details.

Decades and conditions are all relative. Baseball, minus its many stars, can still have a more interesting season than it has known for a long time.

Those Sewell Boys

Those Sewell boys from Alabama have done all right, one way and another. First there was Joseph Wheeler Sewell and his kid brother Luke Sewell, from Titus, Ala. Then there was Rip Sewell from Decatur, Ala.

Joe Sewell stepped from a few months in the minors to help Cleveland win a world series—and then go along to set a new record for consecutive games played, up to the Lou Gehrig era.

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

FEW men in the athletic spotlight have as great or as personal an interest in the present war as Chick Evans, perennial amateur of American golf. Scattered throughout the fighting fronts are 45 former caddies whom Chick is proud to call "my boys."

Chick's great interest stems from the fact that all of these young men are members of a group known as the Evans Scholars at Northwestern university, in Evanston, Ill. They received their chance to go to college as the result of an idea a caddy had back in 1916.

It was in that year that a thin, energetic youngster by the name of Chick Evans made golfing history by winning both the national amateur and national open championships.

The youngster from Chicago received plenty of offers to turn professional and cash in on his newfound popularity. But the get-rich-quick plans didn't appeal to Evans. He wanted to remain in the amateur ranks.

But Evans did accept one offer to make a series of phonograph recordings on golf. The proceeds he turned over to the Western Golf association to establish a fund for "the general advancement of caddies."

For Scholarships

Fourteen years later that fund amounted to $12,000 and Evans decided to use it to provide scholarships for deserving caddies at Northwestern, his former school. Additional contributions amounting to more than $50,000 have been added to the original sum by the Western Golf association. To date 62 caddies have been awarded Evans scholarships.

The 62 scholarship recipients provide some interesting statistics. Of 23 Evans scholars in college at the start of the war, only three remain. The others are in service. Those remaining include a medical student, an engineer and a 4-F. Twenty-five of those who graduated before Pearl Harbor have joined up. The first two caddies selected for the awards in 1930 are in the service. They are Maj. James McGinnis of the Air Service command in India, and Lieut. Harold Fink of the navy.

Golf—and the nation—profited considerably in 1916 when Chick Evans won that pair of championships.

The Cardinals

Although the St. Louis Cardinals may not enjoy the walkaway which was forecast for them at the beginning of the season, they still look like the cream of the National league. The Cardinal shadow is far too dark for the seven other clubs of the circuit.

In Walker Cooper Manager Billy Southworth has the best catcher in the league.

The pitching staff, headed by Mort Cooper, Lanier and Brecheen is tops in the National. Right now the Cards aren't much different from what they were last fall. They have lost a center fielder and a second baseman but the replacements are quite a bit above average. Emil Verban, for example, is thought generally to be a better second sacker than Lou Klein, whom he replaced.

A hasty check over the remainder of the league gives you a faint idea of what a slight chance there is for any of the other teams to compete on anything like even terms.

It isn't likely the draft will riddle the Cardinals to the extent where they will fall prey to another club. They continue to have those class AA farm teams and can continue to draw on them as vacancies arise. Replacement likely will be inferior to the original article but probably better than any substitutes the other teams can pick up.

The matter is somewhat unfortunate. This is the season where a close scramble for the pennant would help make up for the loss of so many stars.

And, as a final word on the subject, the Cubs are due to make known their possibilities. Don't count them out. Charlie Grimm may change the entire picture. The Cubs have looked bad, but they do have a lot more strength than the records indicate.

SPORTS SHORTS

Andy Phillips, one of Illinois' famous basketball Whiz Kids, is now a marine second lieutenant.

John L. Sullivan's biggest purse was the $14,000 he received for beating Herb Shade at San Francisco in 1883.

Farm Income Rose 23% Last Year Over 1942

Livestock, Oil Crops Made Largest Gains

Another good year for farm income from marketings appears to be in prospect for American farmers. Returns in 1943 were 23 per cent greater than in 1942, according to reports from the U. S. department of agriculture, and a continued peak demand for crops and livestock may be anticipated.

Livestock was responsible for last year's marked upswing, figures show, returning $11,189,000,000 out of the total income of $19,092,000,000 from farm marketings. Crops brought in $7,815,000,000. The livestock break-down shows a total of $5,953,000,000 received by farmers for meat animals, $2,705,000,000 for dairy products, and $2,322,000,000 for poultry and eggs.

Gain of 40 Per Cent in South.

Income from livestock as a whole showed a 20 per cent increase in the Western region, and a 40 per cent rise in the South Atlantic region. In Georgia poultry and egg returns were nearly twice the 1942 figure, and in Delaware they went up 87 per cent. The South Atlantic region reported a 70 per cent increase in income from poultry and eggs. Receipts from hogs were high in all sections, with the West North Central region reporting an increase of 41 per cent and the state of Iowa an increase of 39 per cent.

Income from feed grains and hay went up 36 per cent over 1942, with receipts for 1943 totalling $1,114,000,000 compared with $815,000,000 in 1942.

Striking gains were reported for the oil crops, with an income of more than three times the 1942 figure reported in the North Atlantic and South Central regions. The income from oil-bearing crops for the United States as a whole was $611,233,000, compared with $468,000,000 in 1942. Peanut income in Texas was some six times the 1942 return, and soybeans brought in 12 times as much.

Income from vegetables and truck crops increased in all regions with the largest percentage shown in the South Atlantic region where an increase of 52 per cent was reported.

Don't Skimp on Milk in Feeding Young Calves

Calves raised in a market milk area often receive a limited amount of whole milk. This is all right, according to Dr. Olin L. Lepard, assistant professor of dairy husbandry at Rutgers university, provided you don't skimp to the point where it will be harmful to the young animals. And that is apt to happen in times of a scarcity of fluid milk.

"We must remember that even though a calf has four stomachs, the one which is able to change coarse food, such as roughage and grain, into easily digested material does not function early in life," Dr. Lepard reminds dairymen. "The calf really is working on three cylinders, so to speak. Benefits which a calf receives from whole milk during the first four weeks before its rumen is able to function fully include an extra supply of vitamins, especially A, a very digestible type of protein, an ideal source of energy and a real allotment of minerals."

"The amount of milk needed varies considerably, but it is safe to say that most calves should receive at least 300 to 400 pounds of whole milk during the first two months. After this time, they can very safely and more economically be fed on dry feed and a good quality roughage."

Cows Are Kept on Three

Out of Four U. S. Farms

Of the six million farms in the United States, 4,500,000 have cows and 3,000,000 churn butter. These farms used 22 billion pounds of milk in 1943, more than 11 billion pounds being consumed on the farms where produced, 7½ billion going into production of farm butter and over 3 billion pounds being fed to calves.

Fluid milk and cream consumption in the U. S. is highest in history, according to the WFA.

Exclusive War Story:

(Ray Brock, war correspondent, 4½ years in the Balkans for the N. Y. Times and practically en route at this moment to the European theater for International News Service, spellbound some of us with this breathless story. We asked him to jot it down.)

Dear Walter: Here's the story precisely as Bea Tolstoi gave it to me the other night. I think it's one of the great, hitherto unwritten chapters in the war. Scene: Shepheard's Terrace, Cairo. Time: Late afternoon, November 15, 1941. Ken Downs, then an ace war correspondent for Int'l News Service (he's now a Lt. col. on Terry Allen's staff in Europe), was finishing a Scotch and the last five pages of "For Whom The Bell Tolls." Geoffrey Keyes interrupted him. Geoffrey, a lieutenant-colonel at the age of 24 (son of Admiral Roger Keyes), had ducked a desk job in England to come out to Egypt, join the British desert commands and raid the German and Italian rear—dynamiting airdromes, blowing bridges, playing general hell with the enemy, etc. But now Ken Downs told Geoffrey Keyes to go 'way. Ken was absorbed in the fictional last few minutes of Robert Jordan's life in the Bell, the unforgettable last few minutes when Jordan, with a smashed thigh, props himself against a tree and levels his tommygun on an approaching column of Fascist cavalry . . .

Keyes was off with Capt. Colin Campbell and his commands on the raid to kill Rommel, the raid that missed Rommel because the Afrika Korps general was in Rome on a birthday party—but it was one of the most daring operations of the war and won Keyes his Victoria Cross—posthumously. Keyes landed his commands two hundred miles behind the German lines, beached his landing craft by night near Sidi Rafa. They hid two days and nights in a wadi (gully), trekked twenty miles on D-night and snaked up to the Afrika Korps GHQ.

They attacked with grenades, tommyguns and machine pistols, Keyes leading. Keyes killed the first sentry, kicked down the outer door and led his raiders in, spraying the corridor with tommygun and pistol. Startled, frightened German staff officers poured from their billets. Keyes' men blasted them down. The sirens went, a general alarm being sounded.

The Germans got to their arms, began to fight back. Keyes' small force got smaller. But Geoffrey, still leading, took seventeen men through the last defenses in the inner stockade to Rommel's own quarters. Rommel's staff aide got Keyes, a machine pistol fusillade which almost tore Keyes' right leg off. Keyes fell in the doorway. Colin Campbell, behind him, dragged Keyes back from the threshold and hurled two grenades inside. Then he sprayed the room with his tommygun. Had Rommel been there he'd have caught it.

Campbell and a sergeant dragged Keyes back to the outer stockade, firing as they fell back. Then Campbell was hit. "Get out!" Keyes ordered. "Take him out. Leave me here." They had reached the door of the outer stockade. "Give me that tommygun." Keyes took the sub-machinegun and propped himself in the door. Well. The rest of it came from Downs' report—as he got it from the sergeant—and from Colin Campbell, who wrote from a German prison camp.

They dragged Campbell to a tree nearby. His wound was pretty bad. They gave him morphine and he began to go under. But he could still see Keyes, in the first gray streaks of daylight, propped in the doorway and blasting away at the Germans in the stockade. The sergeant ran back to Keyes, but Geoffrey refused aid. He simply demanded more clips for his tommygun. The sergeant got them.

"Listen—" Keyes fired a burst. "Not more than two or three of you will get away. Some of you—" he fired again, a long, choppy burst that drove the Germans back to cover. "Some of you must get back to report—" he fired again and rammed home a fresh clip.

"Tell them—" "Yes, sir!" snapped the sergeant. "Get word to Ken Downs," finished Keyes. "Tell him, if you will, that it happened this way. Good-by." The sergeant saluted and ran, zig-zagging, for a wadi and safety. Campbell began to pass out. As he went under he could see Keyes firing, reloading, firing . . .

Memos of a Midnighter: When an ad agency told Henry Ford that Tommy Dorsey was the next Ford Hour star, Mr. Big replied: "Who's he? What's the matter with Earl Godwin?" . . . It's a girl for the Everett Sloanes at Drs. Hosp. Pop's the Crime Doctor . . . Bob Musel, the New York newspaperman (now in England), has written the song hit of London: "The Homecoming Waltz" . . . The mystery murder (of a diplomat's wife in that Chicago hotel) is the exact plot (so far) of a Universal film starring F. Tone.

Handy Wall Pocket For Ration Books

EARLY American wall pockets cut out of light weight pine or scraps of half-inch material may have many modern uses. In the kitchen they are just the thing for ration books and a pad for the grocery list. Just inside the front door one will lend a decorative note and make a convenient place for driving gloves and keys.

Originally these pockets were made in a great variety of designs and were used for letter boxes.

They are still useful for this purpose or for a leave-a-note pad and pencil. If you enjoy working with wood you may want to cut these pockets out by hand as shown here. But if you have a jig saw available it is much faster.

NOTE—Mrs. Spears has prepared patterns in actual size for this pocket and two others in typical Early American designs. The patterns are on one large sheet with complete directions for making and finishing. Request Pattern 261 and enclose 15 cents. Address:

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Milk, or latex, flows from the rubber tree best in early morning. Therefore, rubber tappers start their day's work long before dawn.

An overload which might reduce the life of a crude rubber tire only 25 per cent or even be carried through until the tread was worn smooth, may reduce the life of a synthetic rubber tire 50 per cent or more and result in a blowout while there is still wear in the tread.

Rubber belting, which now plays such an important part in mining and industrial operations, was first manufactured in this country in 1836.

Saenger A. C. To Present Boxing Wrestling Card

Wrestling bout will feature Stanley Strand known in Amateur Wrestling circles as the Blue Island heavyweight champ. Stanley has won numberless amateur wrestling titles and has been begging matchmaker Ed Horn to get him as opponent that big balloon-headed Dutchman named Willie Alberts. Roberts has wrestled at some local shows and is very popular and Stanley only asks to put his favorite headlock on that ballooned dutch man's head and have him beg for mercy.

Ladies are cordially invited to the sport shows. If the shows meet with enough popular demand they will be run every week with local Saenger A. C. team meeting teams from various other Clubs. So don't forget Ladies and Gentlemen get your tickets early and start your local neighbor champ with your cheers. Children under twelve will be admitted for half price. This is to encourage children in America's leading sport. Don't forget the date June 9 at 8:45 p.m. Saenger Hall, Tinley Park.

Charley Hollwedel is in charge of Hall arrangements and refreshments.
